

Children have the right to

- to life and development
- to a name and a nationality
- to be cared for, to be loved and to be understood
- to have a safe place to live, to clothing, nutritious food and water fit to drink
- to breathe clean air
- to play and rest
- to express their opinion
- to privacy
- to education
- to seek and receive information
- to meet and join together with other children
- to recreational activities
- to the best healthcare possible
- to special care and education if they are disabled
- to care and protection in case of adoption or if living in foster care
- to protection from all forms of abuse, neglect and mistreatment including sexual abuse
- to protection against all forms of exploitation
- to special treatment if they fall victim to abuse, neglect, exploitation, torture or armed conflict
- to legal assistance and fair treatment when accused of committing an offense
- to a fair treatment by the justice system if found guilty according to the law

